Chamounix. Chamounix, the starting-point of all ascents of Mont Blanc, the tallest mountain of the Alps (15,781 feet) has had an independent history which begins in 1091. The village stands on both banks of the Arve at an altitude of 3345 feet. It has some good monuments, especially that to the guide Jacques Balmat who made with Dr. Paccard in 1786 the first known ascent of Mont Blanc.
